Excerpt: . from one place to another, until thou art happy and content in none. We (praise be to God!) were born here, and never desire to quit it I Listen, O my son. There is no wisdom equal unto the belief in God. He created the world; and shall we liken ourselves unto Him, in seeking to penetrate into the mysteries of his creation P Shall we say, behold this star spinneth round that star, and this other star, with a tail, goeth and cometh in so many years? Let it go. He from whose hand it came will guide and direct it. But thou wilt say unto mc, Stand aside, O man, for I am more learned than thou art, and have seen more things. If thou thinkest that thou art in this respect better than I am, thou art welcome. I praise God that I seek not that which I require not. Will much knowledge create thee a double belly, or wilt thou seek paradise with thine eyes? How many a conversational bore has had occasion to realize that choice chunk of oriental wisdom: The speaker is one, and the listener is another? Moreover, how significant are the closing queries!---The London Times, in a recent article, dwells at some length upon the change which has come over the public mind in England, in relation to the social position of her literary men: The titled nobility, of the highest intellectual class, it seems...
